

Cornell Global Health Program

Independent Experiential Learning Opportunity Petition

An Independent Experiential Learning Opportunity (ELO) is an eight-week field experience that counts towards completion of the Global Health Minor (GHM), but is not directly affiliated with the Cornell Global Health Program. The Experiential Learning Opportunity component of the GHM encourages students to empirically deepen their understanding of global health.

Students must submit this form to the Office of Student Services (dnsstudentservices@cornell.edu) at least eight weeks prior to departure.

Will this ELO be in-person, virtual, or both?

You have elected to pursue an Independent ELO that is not pre-Approved. How does this particular field experience relate to your interest(s) within the field of Global Health?

How would the proposed Independent ELO relate to your personal understanding of and growth in Global Health?

In this Independent ELO, what will be your specific roles and responsibilities?

How does this ELO address the learning outcomes? Please address each learning outcome.

1. Identify a global or public health issue, through engagement in practice, policy, or research, which you intend to analyze in great depth in NS4600

2. Examine and explain the key characteristics and interests of host organization, hospital, institution, or research project, and how they relate to specific global or public health issues of interest.

3. Analyze a global or public health issue integrating academic knowledge and experiential learning.

- 4. Document and explain how the applied experience advanced academic, professional, and personal learning goals.

How do you plan to prepare yourself for the proposed Independent ELO in terms of pre-departure training and acquaintance with program details and logistics?
